William Rawlings of Brunswick names daughters Hannah and Lucy Hagood. 1787. (I do not have reference.)

MRS. EDWARD HARDY CLARK
470 PARK AVENUE
NEW YORK

October 25, 1935.

Dear Mrs. Chapman:

Your letter received today found me working busily on one of my husband's line promised to a relative who is interested in promoting some sort of a family interest in South Carolina, descendants of George Frederick Whitmire whose wife was Phoebe Hagood, said to have been a daughter of "Rev." William Hagood of Virginia. I have many Hagood records from Virginia and both Carolinas, but the gaps in the sequence are serious. From the will of Francis Hagwood, 1676-1677, Surry Co., Va., there is nothing for fifty years when the family is found in the newly created Brunswick. If you have time to take this matter up in the Surry records, I should be very grateful. If not, do not give it a second thought. I enclose stamps for the return of the enclosed mss. if you cannot undertake it.

It is very good of you to keep in mind the "lost wives" of George Jordan, etc. I appreciate it more than I can say. I ran onto some interesting bits about the older George Jordan recently but I cannot lay my hands on them at the moment.

I hope you will be able to do something on the Eppes family for the Louisiana man without too much trouble for yourself. Having made such a study of the family, I thought you might have at hand just what he needs.

With many good wishes, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Eva Turner Clark

may have been "Fra. Hawkwood," one of the head rights for Richard Tye and Charles Sparrow who, 12 Aug. 1650, were granted 2500 acres in Charles City County, Va. (Mugent's "Cavaliers & Pioneers.")
HAGOOD

The name Hagood in some of its various forms is found among the earliest records of the Colony of Virginia.
The simplified "Hagood" is the form perhaps most commonly in use in America today and is, like Hawgood, undoubtedly a corruption of the older Hawkwood, meaning "the wood frequented by hawks" (Lower's Patronymica Britannica).

The progenitor of the Southern family of this name was probably Francis Hagwood of whom record is found as early as 1660; in that year a child "Francis, ye son of Francis Hagwood, was baptized," according to an old Charles City register (1655-1665), which gives a list of children baptized in the parish of Martin Brandon.

The Transcripts of Surry County, Virginia, mention Francis Hagwood in 1664; in 1668 Francis Howgood is named in a list of tythables; in 1674 Francis Hogwood and James his servant are named in a list of tythables.
In 1673 Thomas Wall died at the house of Richard Hogwood.

In his will, 3 Jan. 1676 - 1 May 1677, Francis Hagwood of Surry County, Virginia, expresses his desire to be buried by the side of his deceased wife; he names his son Richard executor, his other sons William and George, and the latter's godmother, Mary Rome; he names his daughter Frances, his sister Mary Creed, and his "good friend," Lt. Col. Jordan. (Was this George Jordan of Surry Co., Va., whose will was so interesting?)

A careful search of Surry County records would probably discover numerous items which would throw light upon the family during the next half century. The next item in the possession of the compiler is dated 1720, when George Hogwood is named as executor of the will of Thomas Daniel of Surry County. Seven years later, the will of George Hagood of Surry County is recorded; in it he names his wife A-----, two sons Francis and Richard, ... speaks of "my children" ... names as executors his two sons George and John. 20 Dec. 1727. Witnesses are William Rookings (Rollings?), Thomas Clark.

It is apparent that the family lived in that part of Surry which was taken in 1732 to form Brunswick for there are numerous records in Brunswick from that time on. They were evidently well and favorably known for upon the organization of the new county, at a court held 2 Nov. 1732, the following were represented to the Governor as being fit for the Commission of the Peace: John Duke, Batte Peterson, Nicholas Lanier, William Hagood, and Thomas Wilson, gentlemen.

At a Vestry meeting held for St. Andrew's Parish in the County of Brunswick the 6th day of October 1732 "for the Layinth of the Parrish Levie," there were present Henry Embry, John Wall, Richard Burch, William Macklin, William Wynne, Charles King, William Smith, Thomas Wilson, Robert Dyer, Nicholas Lanier, and William Hagood. It is interesting to note in this connection that the Vestry settled upon a salary for their first minister, Reverend John Betty (Batty), of 16000 pounds of tobacco; also that tobacco was levied for four prayer books and one large Bible for the use of the church, John Wall, Gent., to send for the books. William Hagood was present in 1734 when the vestry arranged to build two chapels in the parish, and he is listed as present at a meeting 1739.

At a court held 6 Mar. 1739, John Duke, Nicholas Lanier, and William Hagood, gentlemen, are recommended as persons fit to execute the office of Sheriff for the ensuing year. Whether William Hagood was chosen for the office does not appear but the frequency of his name in places of importance in the new county and parish indicate that he was a man of ability and integrity.

Although Brunswick County was not formed until 1732, the records show that at least as early as 1727, the Hagoods received land grants in that section: George Hagood, 345 acres, William Hagood, 330 acres (Virginia County Records). On 6 Feb. 1733, William Hagood deeded to John Hagood, 345 acres north side of Meherrin River, Brunswick Co., Va., to which deed M----- Young and James Vaughan, Esq're were witnesses. June 7, 1733, William Hagood and John Duke were witnesses to indenture between Richard Paw and William Johnson, Brunswick Co., Va. Apr. 1, 1735, William Hagood of Brunswick deeded to George Hagood, same county, 130 acres west side of Briery Creek, Brunswick Co., Va. In 1738, Carolina. Half of Brunswick County's southern line borders on North Carolina's Warren County so it was a natural move for the Hagoods of Brunswick to go into adjacent ~~Bute~~ ^{then Bute} Warren as new generations appeared and found the need for new land to develop, just as one branch migrated west into Halifax County, Virginia.

Neighbors and friends ^{of the Hagoods} from Brunswick and neighboring Virginia counties moved into Warren County, North Carolina, among them Marmaduke Johnson, with whom the Hagoods were in some way connected. It seems probable that Marmaduke and Jonathan Johnson of Warren Co., N.C., were brothers or father and son. Their names are continually associated with the names of William, Francis, and Reuben Hagood (Hagwood), in the descriptions of property and as witnesses to deeds, as well as other Johnsons evidently related to each other ^{of whom there were many in Warren.} It is possible that William, Francis, and Reuben Hagood were sons of William Hagood whose name appears often in early Brunswick records up to 1739.

Because of their possible future usefulness in proving the relationships between the various Hagoods and Johnsons, the following abstracts from Warren Co., N. C., records are here inserted. It must be remembered that the early name of Warren was Bute.

Among the many Johnson conveyances of land recorded in Warren Co., N. C., ^{only} the two in which Jonathan Johnson sells land appear to be of interest in connection with the Hagoods, as will be seen later.

Jonathan Johnson and Mary his wife, of Warren Co., N. C., to Parmenas Williams ... land in said Williams' line. Apr. 23, 1779. (Book 7, p. 233).

Jonathan Johnson (or Johnston) must have moved several miles west into Granville County, N. C., about the time he sold his land in Warren, as there are no further records of him in Warren and his will of Feb. 8, 1796, is recorded in Granville County in November, 1797; in it he names his wife Mary; his sons James and Gideon; and daughters, Rebecca Sale, Sally (Sarah) Hagwood, and Susannah Nichols. He names as executors, his wife Mary, and his "real friends" Thomas Vass and Thomas Thomason. Witnesses: William Reeves, sr., Charles Clark, Nancy Clark, Nancy Woodliff. (Granville Co., N.C., Wills 4, p. 160).

Tradition states that William Hagood and his wife, Sarah Johnson, moved about 1776 from Virginia or North Carolina to Ninety-Six District, South Carolina, but does not say whose child Sarah was. The record of Jonathan^{Johnson's} will in Granville Co., N. C., shows that she was his child; not only does he name a daughter Sarah (or Sally), but William^{Hagood's} wife Sarah names her children for her brothers and sisters, according to the will of Jonathan Johnson of Granville Co., N. C. One writer on the Hagood family gives the name of Sarah's husband as "Ellison" Hagood; nowhere, in all the county records of the Hagoods, does this compiler find that name connected with them, nor one corresponding to it; it is probable that the name "Ellison" belongs in one of the maternal lines connected with the Hagoods. The First Census of the United States, 1790, lists William Haguewood as living in 96 District, South Carolina, with 5 free white males under 16 years of age - 4 free white females - 5 blacks. There is no other name remotely resembling Hagood or Hagwood on the Census lists of South Carolina in 1790, and as it is known that William Hagood was living in 96 District at the time, it is obvious that the above record must refer to the same person who married Sarah Johnson. William Hagood was dead in 1813, the records of Edgefield County (part of 96 District) giving, in connection with the settlement of his estate, the following list of heirs: Sarah Hagood (widow), Richard Hagood, Samuel L. Loach, Garland Chiles, Matthew Ray, James Ambler, James Hagood, Rebekah Griffin, ^XJohnson Hagood (by his attorney, Samuel L. Loach, jr.). Larkin Griffin was husband of Rebecca Hagood. Rebecca appears to have been a widow in 1813 and must later have married, 2nd, a cousin, Randolph (or Randal) Hagood who died intestate in Edgefield County in 1820; Rebecca's will of 1824 mentions her deceased husband; bequeaths her estate to her daughter Eliza Ann Hagood during life, and after her death, to her two sisters, Eliza Chiles and Holly Moore Ray. Other Edgefield records show that Matthew Ray had married Holly, daughter of Sarah Hagood; that James Ambler had married Susan Hagood; that Garland Chiles had married Eliza Hagood.

Also living in Edgefield County, Ninety-Six District, South Carolina, in 1790, according to

I have much material on this line which has been published today's Johnson. Hagood is a Major General in the U. S. Army. This family knows nothing back of South Carolina - not where "Johnson" came from.

the First Census, was "George Haguewood, Head of family, 2 free white females including head of family," probably the same as George Hagood whose will was proved in Edgefield County in 1827; in it he named his wife Elizabeth; children James Elbert, Benjamin Franklin, Mary Ann, Bazil Manly, and Georgiana Elizabeth; and his brother-in-law Lemuel Dawson.

Another of the name living in Edgefield County in 1790 was "John Haguewood, Head of family, 3 free white males under 16 years of age - 2 free white females including head of family." Nothing further is known of John.

Johnson Hagood, in 1812, and Gideon Hagood, in 1814, are listed in the Office of the Secretary of State, Columbia, S. C., as receiving grants of public lands. Also found in those records are Lewis Hagood who received a grant in 1814, Elisha Hagood in 1820, both of whom, with Buckner, are listed in the Census of 1790, ~~Camden Dist.~~, S. C., as "Haigwood"; in 1825, Benjamin Hagood also received a grant of land. The following are listed with the spelling "Haigwood" though the name is frequently spelled otherwise in court records.

Andrews, her part of her father's estate in hands of ----- (Signed) Lewis Haygood. Among buyers at the sale: Liza Haigood, Lewis Haigood, Fanny Haigood. 1817.

The variation of spelling as "Hogwood" is found in North Carolina. William Hogwood (probably mistranscribed for "Hagwood" which is frequently found in Warren) of Warren Co., S. C., has a family consisting of wife, young son, and one black. In Northampton Co., N. C., there were four Hogwoods, all apparently without families: Hancil, Henry, Howell, and John. In Wake Co., N. C., George Hogwood is listed, apparently without family. ~~The names~~ Haggard and Hoggard, which may well be variations of the name under consideration, have not been studied. It is amazing how many forms an apparently simple name can take.

Benjamin Haygood, who was born in Virginia 30 Jan. 1758, ~~died 4 Jan. 1841~~ near Charleston, S. C., where he had been settled many years. His wife was Mary Stewart, born in Virginia 25 Dec. 1760, died near Charleston 20 Sept. 1851. Their descendants have kept consistently to the spelling "Haygood." Benjamin Haygood and his son William Haygood kept careful records of the births and deaths of their children. Copies of these records follow:
